

IRC Network accounts

Our IRC networks supports registering accounts directly via NICKSERV for legacy reasons and to allow non-members to use all the features of our IRC network. Click here for a quick guide on how to register legacy IRC accounts.

You can however also use your regular F-hub.org account that is connected to our IRC server via LDAP. Simply use your regular user-name and password as the SASL account details. If you are using our The Lounge IRC web-client, you need to input this twice, once to access The Lounge itself and once in the network connection dialog as the SASL login.

If there is an conflict with an legacy IRC account, please contact us on the #support channel to have an network admin erase that nick. Deleting it via NickServ is sadly insufficient as IRC nick-names stay reserved to prevent impersonation.
